World has been witnessing horrid conflicts and uncertain conditions posing threats to global socio-economic stability, democratic values, proper understanding of international relations, peace and harmony among religions.

Whereas economic instability and poverty are detrimental and disastrous to the lives of people in the third world countries, in a similar effect in the opposite direction, undue diversity in economic and technological growth and highly capitalized ventures cause immoral conditions in the developed world. It is sad to observe that starvation, food insecurity, malnutrition and higher mortality rates still exist in both the worlds.

Secondly, civil disobedient protests are on the rise across the world symbolizing poor governance, inequality, prejudice and injustice in the world governments. Democratic values such as social equality, religious harmony, equitable growth and maintenance of law and order are at risk, very often suffering in the changing political conditions.

As far as the international relations is concerned, peace is more or less becoming a commodity. The politics and economics around peace is very often disturbed by ethnic, racial clashes along the borders mounting pressure on military forces. Better trade relations and cordial relationship between the countries do not reduce tensions along the international borders rather suffer due to wars and war-like conditions.

When the governing ideologies are good, people are happy. When the states fail to lead people in the right direction people begin realizing the differences and social structures also begin to fall. Hatred, ill feelings, lynching, communal riots, corruption, civil disobedience explode causing unhealthy competition, unjustified working conditions and adverse living conditions.

OBJECTIVES

The objectives of this webinar "Gandhi and his relevance in the context of resolving today's burning issues" are:

- To find the relevance of Gandhian ideals in today's world
- To initiate a discussion on the possibilities of Gandhian model in current context
- To understand international issues and their implications at the national level
- To find the feasibilities of resolving global issues

GANDHIAN SIGNIFICANCE

This International Webinar is aimed at discussing the problems, policies, issues and events occurring at global level and find a solution, both theory and practice, to uphold human values, peace and harmony in the world according to the principles of Mahatma Gandhi. The issues of violence, hatred, exploitation, and disgrace to humanity – all these need not remain as they are; and we shall not go unheeding to those cries and woes. As we know the world is changing, impermanent. We need change for the betterment of lives. Let us give our voice, do our bit of what we owe to see a good change.

Mahatma Gandhi's principles of truth, nonviolence, peace and humanity have been widely discussed, spoken in all spheres of life across the world. The significance of following his ideology has ever been increasing; timeless with no boundaries. It evolves to itself in various dimensions as more number of people are taking his philosophy as a benchmark for reckoning during difficult times.

This webinar intends to invite speakers, researchers, academicians, scholars and students to discuss various topics that include:
